RARE COLLECTION OF BLACK OPALS

Put on View at Melbourne by Owner for United States Fleet.

Melbourne.—Probably the rarest collection of black opals in the world—a jewel found only in Australia and little known and as yet little popular in the rest of the world—is in this city, the possession of Kelsey J. Newman. This group of jewels, usually not on public exhibition, was, however, opened up to the personnel of the American fleet which recently completed its cruise of Australasian waters.

The collection was displayed in a curtained annex of the York House gallery, itself a treasure house of antiques gathered from all parts of the world by Isidore Kozminsky, Australia's leading authority on precious and semi-precious gems.

One of Mr. Newman's cases contained a group of Queensland golden sapphires ranging from one to fifty carats. These stones are nearly equal to the diamond in hardness and have a similar beauty, save that their light is orange instead of white.

In another case was a group of blue sapphires of varying shades from velvety blue to cornflower and light-water blue. In still another case were golden zircons, which are softer than diamonds but look very much like them.

Mr. Kozminsky pointed out that such a leading authority as Sir A. H. Church thought "the diamond and zircon had too many points in common to be set together." The zircon was known to antiquity, its name being derived from the Arabic word "zirc," meaning jewel; and in old Sanskrit books it is called the stone of the Moon's Nodes.

Mr. Kozminsky indicated to inquiring American officers that Professors Coster and Hevesty of Copenhagen, the recent discoverers of the element hafnium, had detected it in a blend with zirconium a mineral of the same character as the zircon.

Opals Reflect Various Colors.

The prize group in the jewel collection, however, is the case of opals of all sizes and shapes. One of the most striking stones is a big oval gem of over 64 carats, already known to jewel collectors of the world as "Forest Fires." This stone when moved in the light throws off brilliant red rays very similar, in miniature, to burning trees at night.

Mr. Newman compared it to the historic opal, known as the "Burning of Troy," given by Napoleon to Josephine, while one of the visiting officers compared its coloring to the burning lava pit of the volcano, Kilaua in Hawaii.

Another of the bigger stones called "Moonlight," throws off rays of yellow from a field of blue. A third stone called "Sunset" is similar to the sun descending on the horizon of a gray sky. Other minor gems give off tiny rays of reds, greens, mauves, violets and whites.

Other valuable opals in this collection are:

"The Rajah," a triangular gem of 118 carats, which combines flashing reds with purple, violet, green and gold.

"La Inferno," which displays a group of drooping trees from under which flames leap up, reflecting all the colors of a peacock's tail.

"Emerald Isle" moonlight green.

"Flame Queen" a Unique Stone.

Mr. Newman considers the best of his black opals to be "Flame Queen," a stone of 253 carats, measuring 2.8 by 2.3 inches oval in shape. It was found some years ago at Lightning Ridge, New South Wales, near the Queensland border, the only important source of black opals in the world.

This gem is believed to be unique in structure and color. The center is slightly in relief, while the outside border stands out like a frame. The center of the stone throws out scarlet rays, and two slight depressions on each side and almost parallel to each other give the impression of a volcano in eruption.

The lower of the depressions reflects two triangular shafts of color toward the enclosing frame, which is green. Viewed from another angle the center becomes a vivid emerald and the frame a royal blue. Turned again the center is bronze touched with points of black within a frame of changing blue and amethyst. The stone is chameleon-like.

Mr. Newman, who is a native of Sydney, has spent years in bringing together these gems, which have been pronounced by experts as probably unrivaled in this particular field.

Conscience Money

Logansport, Ind.—B. H. Hudson, superintendent of the Logansport division of the Pennsylvania railroad here, has received $100 conscience money for the railroad company. The note attached to the money explained that the sender had kept the amount in his possession for years, but did not disclose the manner in which he had obtained it.

Resort to Caves

Tokyo—Reports from Seoul, Korea, state that more than 2,000 residents of that place are dwelling in caves just as their ancestors did in a primitive age. It is believed that most of these cave-dwellers are members of the poverty-stricken, unemployed class.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM-BONNER

CLARENCE AGAIN

"This is great," said Clarence, the wart-hog. "I've been asked to tell more about myself and also of the days when I was being brought to the zoo. There has been a special request for hearing of that time again, and of hearing whatever other news I have to tell. It seems they like me, yes, ugly though I am, old Clarence is popular!"

"Indeed," said Master Collared Pecary who was one of his next door neighbors in the zoo.

"Now, young Collared Pecary," said Clarence, "I don't want any nonsense from you. Just because you belong to the Wild Swine family and because you are rare doesn't mean that you can be rude. No creature can be rude who has a snout like yours."

"I never knew my cousins, the pigs, were noted for their good manners," said the Collared Pecary.

"That is true," said Clarence, "I shouldn't have said that you couldn't be rude because of your snout, but I should have said that you need not put on any airs because of your snout. It's a real snout and no-no airs and graces, please."

"You talk about airs and graces, Clarence, as though I were a fairy or an elf and danced my way around the zoo instead of digging the ground and sleeping and eating as I do."

"You talk too much," said Clarence, "and it is high time you stopped."

"There is no such thing as high time," said the Collared Pecary. "There is day-time and night-time and twilight-time and early morning time, and noon time and midnight time and sleepy time and wide-awake time, but there is no such thing as high time."

"Don't talk so much," said Clarence. "I am becoming angry."

"Of course that is a fine reason for me to stop talking," said the Collared Pecary, wiggling his snout.

"I used to be led about the streets of Rome, which, my dear Pecary, is a famous city over in Europe. I was led about on a leash such as a dog might be led about on. I used to be stared at for I was interesting. Ah yes, I was as fine as any dog and I came to the zoo to be shown off because I was so interesting. They certainly did stare at me when I walked about the streets of Rome!"

"Because you were so ugly," muttered the Collared Pecary to himself, but he didn't say it aloud, for he was filled with envy that Clarence had had such an interesting experience when he was such an ugly animal.

"They've got to show me respect, too."

"What do you mean by respect?"

"I mean that they have to be respectful to me, treat me politely and handle me carefully," said Clarence.

"And whom do you mean when you say 'they'?" asked the Collared Pecary.

"I mean the keeper," said Clarence.

"How can you say 'they' when you're speaking of one person?"

"I can do such a thing, but you can't. It wouldn't be correct for you, or for any one else, but for Clarence, the wart hog, it is all right."

"I suppose," said the Collared Pecary, "that it doesn't matter whether you speak correctly or not, is that it?"

"It is not," granted Clarence. "I can say what I want because I am a wart hog, and I say that wart hogs should be given rights and, in short, given their own way."

"Oh," grinned the Collared Pecary, "so that is what you mean?"

"It is," said Clarence, his eyes watering, not because he was sad, but because his eyes had a watery look and often made Clarence look as though he might be crying.

"Well," said the Collared Pecary, "now that I know that you mean one person, and the keeper is the one person, when you say 'they,' will you kindly tell me why he has to show you respect?"

"It's this way," said Clarence. "You see people ask the keeper if he can come in my yard or in my cage with safety. And the keeper always answers—"

"Well, I can go in, but I've got to be careful."

"That means that he has to show me respect, and that I am the boss in my own yard or home. It's a great comfort to me, and a great pride to me that I can do as I like in my own home," ended Clarence, blinking his watery eyes.

A good sandwich for a lunch basket or for other occasions is:

Raisin Sandwich.
—Chop one cupful of seeded raisins very fine, add four hard-boiled eggs also chopped, one and one-half dozen ripe olives pitted and chopped, all mixed to a smooth paste with mayonnaise dressing. Spread on slices of whole wheat bread that has been buttered.

Veal Birds.—Take veal steak cut one-fourth of an inch in thickness, from the leg. Cut into pieces two by four inches. Lay on a piece of salt pork, roll and fasten with a toothpick. Brown in pork fat, season with salt and pepper. Put into a baking dish and cover with rich milk; bake in a slow oven for an hour and a half. Serve with the gravy from the pan, slightly thickened. If the meat is rolled in seasoned flour, the gravy will be thickened by the time the meat is done.

Now, before all the nice fall tomatos are gone put up a few jars of tomato soup, all seasoned ready to heat and serve.

Tomato Soup.—Cook together one-half bushel of ripe tomatoes, fourteen sprigs of parsley, fourteen single stalks of celery, eight large onions, two bay leaves, ten whole cloves. Cut all the vegetables, removing the cores from the tomatoes, and boil one hour or until the mixture can be put through a sieve. Take fourteen tablespoonsful of butter, fourteen tablespoonsful of flour, cook together adding a little of the strained tomato, cook until smooth, add thirteen tablespoonsful of sugar, eight tablespoonsful of salt, four tablespoonsful of paprika, cook until smooth and add to the rest of the liquor strained from seeds. When boiling hot seal in glass-topped cans. This recipe makes about nine quarts.

Kellogg's Bran did more in two weeks than medicine taken in 20 years

Out of regard for your own health, read this letter:

Gentlemen:

Your "Krumbled Bran," used by me on a cereal, has done more for me in two weeks than the hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine I have taken in last twenty years for constipation. It is wonderful, and it is so simple.

Yours truly,
Arlington H. Carman,
Patchogue, N. Y.

Mr. Carman's experience has been duplicated in thousands of homes. Why does Kellogg's Bran succeed when drugs and pills fail? The answer is simple. Drugs have an unnatural effect upon the bowels. They irritate the intestines. The more they are used, the more one has to use. Finally, they have no effect at all.

Kellogg's Bran STIMULATES the intestines. It cleans, sweeps and purifies them. It acts exactly as nature acts. And it is never necessary to increase the amount eaten. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to bring permanent relief to the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. For Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's.

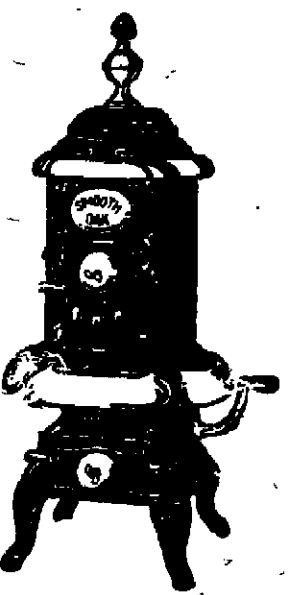

The wonderful, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran is exclusive. It is delicious—totally unlike ordinary bran. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipes on every package. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

THE OAK HEATER

Has established a reputation for itself among your neighbors and we sincerely recommend its purchase.

With the high price of coal and even at that its scarcity, the only logical thing to do is to purchase a heater which will be economical to maintain in fuel.

Dispel the chill of these fall evenings with an Oil Heater, a real necessity of comfort priced within the dictates of thrift.

TenEyck Heads State Farm Bureau

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Syracuse, Nov. 13.—Peter G. Ten Eyck of Albany was elected president of the New York State Farm Bureau Federation at the annual meeting of the organization at the Hotel Onondaga here today. Mr. Ten Eyck is a former congressman, member of the Joint Agricultural Committee of Congress, and has been active in farm bureau work in Albany county. He owns and operates a dairy farm near Albany.

The other officers elected were C. R. White of Ionia, Ontario county, first vice-president; D. H. Smith of Onondaga county, second vice-president; and R. H. Thompson of Hevelton, St. Lawrence county, treasurer. Elected also: E. V. Titus of Glen Head, Long Island, director. Enoch Lee of Yorktown Heights, former president of the federation, was elected director from the state to the American Farm Bureau Federation. Mr. Ten Eyck was also elected director to the national federation.

Tax Reduction Program Adopted.

The meeting was attended by about 100 leading farmers of the state, including accredited delegates from each county farm bureau association. The organization adopted a program of tax reduction which will be presented to the legislature this fall. This program meets the question of expenditures through a proposal to establish a budget system for every unit of taxation from the school district up to the federal government. The program proposes that before any authorizations for expenditures are made the sources of revenue be published and that at the end of each fiscal year a comprehensive report be made to the public setting forth expenditures.

Draws Line Between Policies.

In commenting on the program Mr. Ten Eyck, who is chairman of the tax committee, said: "The farm bureau has with a nicely drawn a division line between the Pay-As-You-Go plan and the raising of funds for permanent construction. The fundamental goal to which it has worked is an equitable distribution of the burden of taxation to pay the cost of government, with the idea in mind of taxing the entire wealth of the country and thereby relieving the burden on real estate. This organization realizes the necessity of relieving the home of the working people and the home of the farmer from unjust burdens. Both enter into the cost of producing food and necessities and thereby affect the cost of living of the entire citizenship."

Want Potato Embargo to Stay.

The delegates passed a resolution opposing the raising of the existing embargo on potatoes from certain countries. The resolution was based on the fact that the relief offered the consuming public in making available new sources of potatoes in the face of the present shortage would not be commensurate with the risk from plant disease imposed on the growers.

Plan to Stop Depredations.

A committee, appointed to consider ways of stopping the depredation of farm property, proposed that the federation undertake a vigilance service to members, furnishing sign to those farms which receive the service. The committee's recommendations were adopted by the delegates and the federation will offer a reward of $25 for information leading to the arrest of any individual guilty of grand larceny, a member's property and $10 for information on any guilty of petty larceny. A. F. Randolph of Allegany county, chairman of the Vigilance Committee, said in presenting the recommendations: "Many otherwise law abiding citizens seem to think that if they can steal any fruit or vegetable along the roadside, it is within the law as long as they are not seen. We believe that the vigilance service, as proposed, will impress upon such persons the serious nature of such depredations and that they will cease."

ESOPUS.

Esopus, Nov. 12.—The business meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society was held at the home of Mrs. W. J. McLean, and there was a large attendance. Arrangements were made for the coming fair. At the close of the meeting Mrs. McLean served delicious refreshments.

There will be a business meeting of the Epworth League in the church basement Thursday evening, November 12, at 8 o'clock.

On Sunday, November 15, at 11 o'clock the Rev. Dr. George Benton Smith will preach and administer communion.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church will hold their annual fair in Red Men's Hall on November 18 and 19. Chicken supper first night and chicken salad the next. There will be all kinds of fancy articles, groceries and candy on sale. Also an entertainment both evenings. The Tinnies of Port Ewen will give the entertainment the first evening. The next evening will be home talent. Home made ice cream and cake on sale. Everybody welcome.

Doris, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Jones of Esopus, died last Thursday at the family residence. She was a child of pleasing personality and gave promise of a bright womanhood. She was always a leader in her church and school activities and will be greatly missed by all. The esteem in which the child was held was shown by the very beautiful floral pieces. The entire community sympathizes with the bereaved parents. The funeral services were held at the home of her parents on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The officiating clergyman was her pastor, the Rev. T. Arthur Jones, assisted by the Rev. William P. Zwisch, of the Spring Street Lutheran Church. Interment in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

PRINCE OF WALES PICKS AMERICAN GIRL PARTNER

Only "Foreigner" Invited to Dance Given for Uruguayans by British Hairs.

Montevideo.—The American colony here believes it has a joke on the British colony and also upon select Uruguayan society because the prince of Wales preferred an American girl as a dancing partner during the social festivities in his honor when he visited the Uruguayan capital.

They think also there is a joke somewhere on the prince, too, for when the prince especially invited her to the dance, the American girl would not go unless her fiancé was also invited. He was and went, watched the prince dance with her three times in succession, and "cut in" when his highness begged for a fourth.

The prince saw her—Miss Veronica Purviance of Kansas City, daughter of Charles Purviance, manager of the Armour packing plant here—at a luncheon given to his royal highness by the British colony. Mr. Purviance had been invited, with his family, as president of the American Association of Montevideo.

The next day Miss Purviance received a card from the British minister saying that at his royal highness' request she was invited to attend a reception and dance the prince was giving. She answered that, as she was engaged, the invitation would have to include her fiancé, with the result that a card also went to Leonard Welch of the Buenos Aires branch of the National City bank, who hurriedly took the next boat to Montevideo.

No other Americans and no English were invited to the dance, which was to repay the attentions of the Uruguayans. The Uruguayan señoritas of the best families were out in force. The three dances the prince danced with Miss Purviance were the first three, and it was said that when she reminded the prince that he had a duty to perform and should dance with the others, he replied:

"I'm fed up with duty dances." It was here that her fiancé claimed her.

Boston Uses Theater as School for Culture

Boston.—The opening of the Repertory theater of Boston with Sheridan's "The Rivals," gives official recognition to a theater as an educational institution, and thus is exempted from taxation.

Patterned somewhat along the lines of many civic theaters of Europe, the workers on this stage will strive not only for the perfection of their art, but also to give earnest students of the drama a chance to absorb the real atmosphere of the theater.

Its educational efforts will be to present plays of artistic merit to the public, to interest high school students, in the theater, and to train and teach embryo actors and actresses.

Professional actors and actresses will play the characters while students look on at rehearsals and receive their instruction from these same professionals.

The theater is the outcome of years of effort, and for Henry Jewett, its director, and Mrs. Jewett, who has been the guiding hand in many phases of the work, it is a vision realized.

Finances of the theater will be handled by a board of trustees and the entire project will be non-profit making.

Mr. Jewett hopes eventually to buy original plays and send out road companies to show other cities what the Repertory theater is doing in the hope that similar projects may be launched elsewhere.

The theater itself cost $150,000 and embraces all that is modern. It will accommodate 400 people.

"Black Glass" Enables Photograph in Darkness

Tokyo.—After several years' investigation, Jusei Sugie, a scientist of the industrial experimental station of Osaka, is reported to have invented a black glass of a special kind which is expected to prove of great military value. It is said the glass is opaque to all but ultraviolet rays, and, by its use, battle formations or the movements of an enemy can be easily photographed in darkness without detection. Moving pictures, it is claimed, can also be taken in the dark by its use.

Experiments with the new glass made recently in the presence of Rear Admiral Muto are said to have proved a complete success.

The inventor declares the glass will be found valuable in medical treatment.

Appeal to States in War on Steel Trap

Washington.—Officials of the newly organized national trap league are preparing a pamphlet written by Edward Breck, writer, lecturer and former navy officer, who is president of the organization, appealing for general support of the league's program, which covers both the United States and Canada. This program the organization's officials summarize as follows:

"We propose to bring about the passage of a law by all the state and provincial legislatures making illegal all use of the torturing steel trap and other non-killing devices for taking fur, except by the authorities in the case of vermin."

Every woman who ever wore fur will be asked to contribute $1.

Nothing Mightier Than the Home

President of Home Bureau Federation Tells State Conference of Value of Home to Community and Nation.

Mrs. G. Thomas Powell of Glen Head, Long Island, in her presidential address at the sixth annual meeting of the New York State Federation of Home Bureaus at Syracuse this week paid a tribute to American womanhood and said, "I do not know which is greater, the men who died at Lexington and Concord in order that a nation might be made, or the women who live fine lives and give to their children the training and ideals which can make a nation live. There is nothing mightier than a home."

In reviewing the work of the past year the president pointed out that only seventeen of the sixty New York counties are not yet organized for home bureau activities. Other states have followed New York's example in establishing a state federation of home bureaus. Illinois is already organized and Michigan is asking how New York does it.

Mrs. Powell spoke of the visit she made during the past summer to historic places in New England, such as Lexington and Concord. While at Concord she stopped at a plain home. Entering the doorway she found many others there, and saw them work carpets which young feet had trod and the costumes which had been made for plays given by the family. Visitors were there from England and from far-off Australia who felt it was a privilege to be under the roof of the house which had once sheltered Louis M. Alcott.

"It was the simple story which she wrote of the home life of four girls and their beautiful mother and brilliant father which had made it an influence throughout the world. While it was a humble home, often lacking in necessary things, and a home without thrilling adventures beyond the daily joys and sorrows, it had a story of splendid and unselfish living which has helped hundreds of girls to higher ideals."

"While the homes of the members of the New York State Federation of Home Bureaus may not become famed in literature as did the Alcott home," said Mrs. Powell, "they may live forever in the lives of their children and neighborhood influence which extends to the community and from the community throughout county and state and nation."

Tree That Owns Itself

One of the most famous trees in the country now stands in Athens. It is unique because it is the only tree in the world that owns itself. A few feet of ground surrounding the tree is marked off and the land is deeded to the tree.

There was another well-known tree that stood on the University of Georgia campus until a few years ago when destroyed by lightning. It was called the Toombs oak—for there Robert Toombs, as a student, meeting with the ire of the faculty upon the eve of his graduation, delivered his commencement oration. It is said that so many left the chapel that Toombs had a larger audience listening to his address than the audience on the inside of the chapel.—Carey J. Williams, in the Greensboro (Ga.) Herald-Journal.

Einstein's Theory

Here are two interesting examples of Einstein's famous theory a common man may understand, says Capner's Weekly. Suppose you are watching a clock and have the power to continue watching it no matter how fast or how far it recedes from you. As each second the light waves by which you see the clock will have farther to come and take a longer time on the way, that will make the clock appear to go slower and slower. Yet Einstein insists you will not be wrong in supposing the receding clock goes slower and slower than you would be wrong in supposing it kept good time if instead of receding it stood still.

In the same way, suppose you were to look a stone out of the window of a speeding railway train. To the passengers it would seem to fall backward, but a station hand standing beside the track would see it fall forward, though not so fast as the train. It all depends on the point of view. This is why Einstein calls his theory relativity.

With Cheerups and the Quixies
by Grace Bliss Stewart

POLLY PARROT'S DILEMMA

"GOOD morning, good morning," "good morning!" screamed Polly Parrot at the top of her voice. "It's time to get up; it's time to get up!" "Oh, dear!" yawned Cheerups sleepily, as he stretched himself and opened one eye. "What was that noise? I didn't tell the Quixies to call me. Oh, here's a visitor already. How do you do, Polly Parrot! I have seen some of your cousins in the United States and so I recognized you right away. I hope you'll excuse me for not being dressed. I'll just slip on this bath-robe," and Cheerups wrapped a large fern frond about him. "Of course I'll excuse you," cried Polly, flapping her gray wings and snapping her beak, "but why people are such lazybones is more than I can tell. And that, by the way, is what I have come to see you about—lazybones and how to cure them, I mean. But as you are one yourself, I doubt if you can tell me. You wouldn't go to the bat to find out how to see, now, would you?" "Do calm down, Polly, and tell me what is the matter," said Cheerups in a gentle voice. "At least you can give me the chance to be of some help." "Well," began Polly more pleasantly. "Mr. Parrot and I build our nest—no, we don't either; we don't really build a nest at all, we just find some nice cozy hole in the trunk of a tree and there I lay my eggs. Then the trouble begins! For I do get so tired sitting on those eggs day and night, and Mr. Parrot never offers to help me out. It really seems to me that he ought to do his share."

"Of course I'll excuse you," cried Polly, flapping her wings.

"Have you, asked him nicely to do so, Polly?" inquired Cheerups. "Well, I've scolded a lot about it," replied Polly sheepishly. "That won't do," said Cheerups, with as nearly a severe look as his merry little eyes would hold. "That won't do at all. When you go home, just ask Mr. Parrot as pleasantly as you can if he won't sit on the eggs part of the time. Mention that 'turn about is fair play,' and say that you will fly off and find a juicy worm or a bit of fruit for his supper while he is sitting on the nest. And, mind you, here's another good idea which may come in handy sometime. If you ever think that danger is coming too near your precious eggs, call the rest of the Parrot flock to come and help you drive off the enemy. Mother Nature tells me that they will gladly do it."

"But the very best way, as you will find, To get your wish, is just be kind."

Poor Polly was so ashamed of herself that she hung her head for a minute, then she screamed delightedly, "I'll try it, Mr. Cheerups, I'll try being kind and pleasant; and I won't forget what you say about asking the other Parrots to help me, either. Thank you very much. Now I must go home, for no telling where Father Parrot is and those eggs may be getting cold."

"Won't you stop for a bit of bread-fruit with us?" called Cheerups.

"No, thanks, too much of a hurry," chattered Polly and was gone. From that day to this the rule in the Parrot family has been share and share alike.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

CROWS AND THE CROPS

AS A rule crows are birds of evil omen. But there is one condition under which a farmer may see a crow to his advantage. If a solitary crow is seen walking about a field just before it is put to seed then it is an omen of good crops. But should the lone crow perch on a limb overlooking the field as the seed is being put in the corn will run to stalk and there will be precious little grain. And if the crow caws the crop will be a total failure.

This is because the crow—or the raven, which is practically the same thing—is an attendant bird of Odin, the chief of the Norse gods, and Odin had a direct interest in agriculture, as many stories of him attest. It was formerly the custom in the Scandinavian peninsula to leave standing in the field after the harvest a sheaf of wheat "For Odin's horses," and the god is represented as once having protected in person a field of rye near Trölsborg in which rye grew with astounding fruitfulness. Now when the bird of Odin walks quietly over a field, inspecting it, he is acting for his master—giving it Odin's protection. This is mythology, a survival of the Norse religion. But in the perching of the crow upon a limb overlooking the field we see the introduction of magic. He is perched on a limb—a stalk, as it were—and so, by sympathetic magic, the future crops will run to stalk in imitation of the limb upon which the crow perches. The ancients not infrequently mixed up magic with their mythology.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel.

ELLEN

VERY few people know that Ellen may be spelled Elin and still remain the same charming name which signifies a "light" or "radiance." In these days of affection when Ediths turn into Edithes overnight and Alice becomes Alys, it is interesting to discover that even the somewhat simple name of Ellen is capable of adaptation.

The name comes from the Greek root Ele which was first used in the name of the moon deity Selene. From Ele again sprang the most noted of all Greek names, Helene, from which Ellen is directly derived. The latter name made its first appearance in Scotland where the pronunciation caused the H to be dropped from Helene.

In Wales, Elin was adopted in place of Helene. It came into being through the Eglwys Han, the church of Helen, which was greatly revered by the Insular Kelts. Ellen has achieved almost as great popularity in this country as her predecessor Helen. Her cognate was greatly increased by Sir Walter Scott's charming poem, "The Lady of the Lake." Many English celebrities have borne the name, among them the greatest of English actresses, Ellen Terry.

Amber is Ellen's talismanic stone. The ancients believed that it would protect its wearers from contagion and would guard them from danger when traveling. Thursday is Ellen's lucky day, and 5 her lucky number.

Old Hebrew Monarchy

The kingdom of Judah was given to that part of the Hebrew monarchy that remained after the revolt of the ten tribes in 975 B. C. It comprised the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, together with some Danites and Simeonites, and had Jerusalem for its capital. The kingdom of Judah was ruled over by twenty kings, and lasted until 586 B. C., when Nebuchadnezzar captured Jerusalem, destroyed and plundered the temple, and carried the inhabitants into captivity. When Babylon fell under the conquering arms of Cyrus, that monarch permitted the Jews to return to their homes and rebuild their temple. From that time the Jews remained a subject nation and were ruled over successively by the Persians, Macedonians, Egyptians and Romans.—Kansas City Star.

Not Hard to Please

A prisoner was in the dock on a serious charge of theft, and the case having been presented to the court by the prosecuting counsel, he was ordered to stand up.

"Have you a lawyer?" asked the magistrate.

"No, sir."

"Do you want a lawyer to defend your case, then?"

"Not particular, sir."

"Well, in these circumstances, what do you propose to do about the case?" came the next query.

"Well, sir," answered the prisoner, yawning extravagantly as if wearied by the whole performance, "I'm willing to drop the case far's I'm concerned."

Collapsible Umbrellas

From the patent office records it appears that a large number of inventors have had a hand in the organization and development of the folding umbrella. We find that three or four hundred patents have been granted for various improvements thereon in the United States and foreign countries. The folding idea is partly worked out in a French patent to Gerard of 1828. The earliest United States patent that has come to our attention is that to Richardson, Morris & Perry, No. 11361, dated August 22, 1854.

RADIO TELEPATHY FAILS.

British Broadcasting Company Did Not Succeed.

By Telegram to The Freeman London, Nov. 12.—Radio telepathy is a failure.

The British Broadcasting Company made efforts last night to establish radio telepathy but did not succeed.

A committee of prominent persons were locked in a room at the broadcasting station. An announcer in another room then asked two million radio fans to concentrate their minds upon certain objects, such as a certain card. After a reasonable time the committee was asked to name the object upon which the listening radio fans were concentrating. The committee failed to name a single object correctly.

Spanish Town ClaimsHome of Columbus

A campaign rages in Paris to show that an Arab discovered America 400 years earlier than Columbus. This agitation has not prevented a fourth town from claiming the distinction of being the great Christopher's birthplace. This latest claimant is the small Spanish Galician community of Pontevedra. It is preparing to put up a monument commemorating itself as Columbus' home town.

Pontevedra's action has excited the rival Columbus birthplaces. Genoa, Calvi, Colos, none will admit the competency of the evidence on which the others have their claims, and all make light of Pontevedra. The French press may seek to destroy the glory of the man whom a Corsican historian named "the inventor of America"—but the four towns argue on.

Colos, in Portugal, contains a whole library on the subject of where Columbus was born. Not only does it hold that Columbus first saw the light of day in that village in the province of Alentejo (the country of the poet Camoes), but also that, Genoa to the contrary, he studied for his subsequent nautical calling in the Portuguese kingdom, and offered his services to the king of Spain only after they had been refused by Juan II of Portugal.

The general opinion seems to be that, since Homer had no less than seven birthplaces, (according to the best authorities—the towns themselves), no one can call four excessive for a man like Christopher Columbus.

New editions of the encyclopedias reassert that Genoa was his birthplace. The Americana says he was "born in Genoa probably in 1451." It records that he first offered to go on his eventful voyage for Juan II of Portugal and that he "also sent letters to Henry II of England, with the same ill success." Nelson's (English) Encyclopedia records that the "discoverer of the new world was born in the neighborhood of Genoa and went to sea at fourteen," and was for a time in Portuguese maritime service. The New International Encyclopedia says he, "the discoverer of America, was born in Genoa." But he married at Lisbon and there his son, Diego, was born. The Britannica records that he was "the eldest son of Domenico Colombo and Suzanna Fontanarossa and was born at Genoa about 1449 or in 1451."—New York Times.

Iowa's Triple-Threat Back

Sport critics say that Iowa has just one chance of winning the Western Conference football championship this season. This is it. It is Nick Kutach, triple-threat half-back, who weighs 180 pounds, runs cleverly, starts fast, passes accurately and is a decent kicker.

"Snooks" Dowd Ran Two Hundred Yards

"Snooks" Dowd, Jersey City International league infielder, ran 200 yards for a touchdown back in the palmy days when he was playing quarterback on the Lehigh team. Inches from his opponents' goal line, he became confused on the plunge and started running the wrong way. He ran the entire length of the field in the wrong direction before regaining his sense of direction. Circling his own goal posts, he retraced his steps down the field through the eleven opposing players for a touchdown, the longest run in the history of intercollegiate football.

Champion Mickey Walker Latest to Go in Movies

This movie infusion of the prize ring is sad, sad business. Look who's fallen now. Mickey Walker, the Toy Bulldog and fighter par excellence.

When the news was broadcast that Champion Mickey had signed a contract to appear under the direction of Jack Kearns the public was mystified.

Mickey won the title without Kearns' aid, and was making a good job of it, since Jack Buger's death, by acting as his own manager.

Walker had an engagement with Harry Greb. After a fight in California he returned to New York. The sight that met his friends at the depot was enough to knock them for a row of duckpins. He was rigged up in the latest Hollywood fashions. His silk lavender shirt, polka-dot necktie and multi-colored knickers were, speaking flapperese, the cat's whiskers.

Here's the explanation. Mickey wants to get into the movies, and he thinks Kearns is the man to put him there. As a starter, Mickey will do a skit in ravinville, and then, if things pan out well, we shall see the forced smile of another champion on the silver screen.

And then maybe Mickey, too, will sign up contracts to fight some time next year, with eight weeks of training. Like big Jack Dempsey. And so will pass the last of our fighting champions.

Cash and CarryBacon's High Praise of Biblical Writer

Dr. Francis Bacon, one of the world's greatest thinkers, had great admiration for the Book of Job. "That excellent book of Job," he called it. And then he suggested that, if it be carefully studied, it will be found to contain a wonderful knowledge of natural philosophy, written before Leaning.

The reference to the liberals in the earth, Bacon thought, proved that Job was a great mineralogist. There is really something plausible in this thought. Of course Job could have known nothing of the present theory of geology, namely, that the earth was built up by one layer piling upon another layer. But his familiarity with minerals and metals and his reference to wheat crops and his belief that there was heat underneath the earth's crust, fit in so well with what we know today that it must be admitted Job at the very least, was a clear-sighted man.

Bacon university's new stadium at Providence is finished. It will seat 30,000. All of Brown's games will be played at home, including Iowa, Yale, Penn. Harvard and Dartmouth.

Believe British Submarine Crew Of 69 Drowned

British Submarine M-1 Located in Such Deep Water That Rescue Is Considered Impossible—Many Theories Advanced as to the Cause of the Tragedy.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Nov. 13.—The fate of the British submarine M-1, lost in the English channel yesterday, probably will never be known.

The submarine was located by rescue ships today, but in such deep water that divers cannot go down to her, and salvage officers state that it will be practically impossible to raise the vessel to the surface.

Sixty-nine officers and men aboard the submersible probably met a tragic death by drowning, according to naval men here. It is believed that when the M-1 made a dive yesterday that she struck a submerged mine, which exploded and tore a hole in her side, instantly flooding her and drowning the men within. Another theory which has been advanced is that the M-1 dove into a submerged wreck and sprung her plates, causing the ship to flood.

Struck Sunken Submarine.

A sunken German submarine may have caused the tragic loss of the M-1, others said, for they pointed out that several German submarines were sunk off Devonshire coast during the war and the M-1 may have run afoul of one of these wrecks.

Salvage ships are reported still standing by, but with deep water and unfavorable weather there is only the barest hope that the M-1 will ever be raised to the surface.

240 Feet Below Surface.

Naval officers aboard H. M. S. Revenge, one of the salvage ships, estimate that the M-1 is resting on the bottom 240 feet below the surface. The pressure at that depth would be so great that it would force the plates of the submarine apart. It is estimated that the occupants of the ship would not possibly survive more than 36 hours after the vessel went down.

Hopeful at Portsmouth.

The Central News published a report from Portsmouth that it has been ascertained that the M-1 did not collide with any submerged wreckage and states that there are still hopes for the lives of the crew.

Throughout the night destroyers equipped with hydrophones which enabled them to hear sounds beneath the surface of the water, patrolled the scene in an effort to locate the sunken ship. It was estimated the submarine was lying in about thirty fathoms of water.

By noon weather in the channel had cleared somewhat and led to hopes that the submarine would soon be located and that salvage ships might get to work.

The suggestion was made in Plymouth naval circles that M-1 in diving ran afoul of the many wrecks that clutter the bottom near the Devon coast as a result of the German submarine campaign during the war.

Satin and Fur Is Used for One-Piece Outfit

The straight-line frock is not the overly simple thing it used to be. A pencil-blue crepe de chine gown here illustrates some of the new ideas introduced this season. Quaint sleeve trimmings of black satin, bands of fox on the separate panels indicate the trend toward elaboration in the frock of one-piece design.

Somehow Manage to Live

We all know many people who have nothing apparently and never get anything ahead, Arthur Auld observes. You are sure they are at the edge of want, can't manage to get along much further. Yet year after year passes, they neither starve nor freeze. What's more, they seem just as happy as those who live well and have something on which to go. How they do it you can't tell. Neither can anybody else. You just have to admit that everybody has a way of getting along. It may be a poor one, but he manages; he's not greatly dissatisfied with it. If he was, he'd probably get around and find a better way.—Cap-ter's Weekly.

Severe 'Quakes Are Recorded

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 13.—A severe earthquake was reported on the seismograph of Fordham University at 7:35 a. m. today. The disturbance, estimated at a distance of 8,000 miles on an east-west line, did not subside until 8:28.

Registered at Washington.

Washington, Nov. 13.—The height of the earthquake disturbance registered on the seismograph of Georgetown University was between 5:05 and 8:05 today. Father Torndorf said. He estimated the distance was 8,300 miles from Washington and in a southerly direction.

Recorded at Denver.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 13.—Two earthquake shocks of great severity were recorded this morning on the seismograph at Regis College according to Father Foran.

The first shock at 8:48 reached its maximum at 6:18 while the second registered at 7:15 was of one and one half hours duration. The distance could not be estimated and it is believed the shock was felt on this continent.

U. S. Weather Bureau Report.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Severe earth shocks, gradually increasing in intensity and lasting for more than two hours were recorded on the seismograph of the United States Bureau at the University of Chicago today. The first shocks were noted at 7:22 a. m. A sharp movement began at 7:33 a. m. The indicated distance was 5,400 miles from Chicago.

Family of Naval Heroes

It is a sixteen-year-old naval cadet who has just succeeded to the baronetcy of his father, Admiral Sir Michael Culme-Seymour, who in the great war commanded the battleship Centurion at Jutland, afterward directed as rear admiral of the British forces in the Black sea, helping the Russian empress mother and the members of her family to escape from the Crimea, and who from 1923 to 1924 was commander in chief of the British naval forces in north Atlantic and west Indian waters.

That young Sir Michael Culme-Seymour should belong to the naval profession is in keeping with the traditions of his ancient family and serves to recall the fact that the name of Seymour has figured without a single break on the roster of the officers of the British fleet ever since the reign of Henry VIII, that is to say, prior to the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus. Sir Thomas Seymour was the lord high admiral of the blue-board monarch. And another Seymour was the vice admiral of that fleet which defeated the Spanish armada.—Family Herald.

Would Take Her Unfinished

Robert, aged six, ardently desired a sister, and was told that he was to have one. He was given a doll for a little sister. Results not coming at once as he wished, one night, he asked: "If you have a baby almost finished, don't wait to put in her teeth or to put in, as they usually have to be cut out, anyway."

Charges Army Air Service Was "Muzzled"

Major Dargue Testifies That War Department "Muzzled" the Aviators—Mrs. Lansdowne's Story Will Stand in the Records.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 13.—In recent war maneuvers between the army air service and anti-aircraft forces, the war department "muzzled" the aviators while giving their opponents unlimited publicity. Major Houser T. A. Dargue, of the army war plans section, testified today at the court martial of Colonel William Mitchell.

Dargue declared an order was issued by the war department forbidding all publicity on the war tests held at Camp Dix, N. J., on July 27, last. The publicity, he said, later was taken off for the coast artillery but never revoked for the air service. His testimony substantiated Mitchell's charges that the war department frequently "muzzled" the army air service.

Mrs. Lansdowne's Story to Stand.

The story of Mrs. Margaret Lansdowne—that Captain Paul Foley, navy judge advocate, attempted to persuade her to give "false testimony" in the investigation into the Shenandoah disaster—will stand in the records of the army court martial of Colonel William Mitchell.

A motion to strike the sensational testimony of the Shenandoah widow from the record was denied today at the resumption of the Mitchell court martial, marking another technical victory rung by the colonel in his efforts to prove the war and navy departments badly administered.

Summon Foley and Mrs. Steele.

As a result of the court's ruling, Mrs. George W. Steele, wife of the commander at Lakehurst, N. J., and Captain Foley, will be summoned as witnesses in the Mitchell trial.

Mrs. Lansdowne said Captain Foley attempted to influence her testimony before the Shenandoah board by preparing a "false" statement for her. The statement was delivered to her, she said, by Mrs. Steele.

The motion, made by Colonel Sherman Moreland, trial judge advocate, was overruled first by Colonel Blanton Winship, law member of the court. His decision was objected to by Major General Benjamin A. Poore and the court retired, only to return and uphold Winship's opinion.

In offering his motion, Colonel Moreland declared:

"Her testimony is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant. I do not believe the testimony of Mrs. Lansdowne should be left in the record."

Representative Frank H. Reid, Republican of Illinois, chief of Mitchell's counsel defended her testimony. He declared the flying colonel was on trial for predicting "the navy department will attempt to whitewash the Shenandoah disaster."

Controlled Drums.

J. Edward Cassidy, gas expert and a colonel in the gas warfare reserves, was the first witness. He testified that the testimony given by the house military affairs committee by Major General Huse A. Drum, assistant chief of staff, that it would take 2,439,850 pounds of mustard gas and 2,000 planes or 5,000 planes, each carrying a 2,000 pound gas bomb, to effectively gas the District of Columbia or to force its evacuation.

On cross examination, Colonel Moreland failed to shake Cassidy's testimony.

GREENLAND

View of Godthaab, Greenland.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

GREENLAND replaces Spitzbergen in the public's interest since the summer exploration of the North Polar regions is being conducted from that bleak continental island. The MacMillan expedition under the auspices of the National Geographic society not only has its chief base in Greenland, at the far northern Eskimo village of Etah, but the navy planes which are accompanying the party will fly over and map large areas of the interior of the island, and in addition studies will be made on the ground of Greenland's old Norse ruins.

Greenland is an interesting region in itself apart from the scientific activities being conducted there this summer. It is the largest island in the world (if Australia be claimed as a continent), has the land reaching closest to the North pole, is the country harboring the northernmost civilized community, and is the one land mass where conditions of the great ice age are now dominant.

Mercator of map fame has unwittingly confused the mind of the world in regard to Greenland. Because the sphere is flattened out on many maps as though its surface were stretched, Greenland, vast as it is, is made to appear many times larger. It is as though the island were reflected in one of the mirrors set up at country fairs to make the thin appear fat.

But viewed properly, the great northern island bulks large enough to command respect. If its northernmost point were placed at the Canadian border in North Dakota, its southernmost point would reach to the mouth of the Rio Grande, the southern extremity of Texas. Its greatest width is approximately equal to the distance from New York to Chicago.

But though the island is almost continental in size, having an area of about 800,000 square miles, it has only 15,000 inhabitants, the daily population of a single huge office building in lower New York city. The reason for this sparse population is not alone the far northern position of the country, for the lower half of the island is approximately the same latitude as the Scandinavian peninsula with its 8,000,000 souls. But while Scandinavia is bathed by the warm Gulf stream, and Iceland, too, is benefited by it, Greenland lies far from its influence and is washed only by icy Arctic currents.

Buried Under Snow and Ice.

Exposed to the full effects of the frosts of the Arctic, the great island which at one time in geologic history had the climate and verdure of California, has been changed into a frozen desert. The once green country has been buried under a sheet of snow and ice.

Greenland's mountains are "icy" as the missionary song has it. All mountains that are high enough are icy even under the Equator. But the snow missed the real point: Greenland's valleys are icy—filled solidly full of ice, in fact. It is doubtful if anywhere else in the world such a tremendous ice sheet exists as in Greenland. The snows of perhaps a dozen or more millenniums have built up a crystal blanket that in places is six or seven thousand feet thick. It has buried valleys, hills and mountains alike, making central Greenland into a huge snow and ice plateau, a single tremendous glacier with countless tentacles that extend down into the coast fords, ever feeding icebergs to the ocean.

Only a narrow fringe along a part of the coast is free from the ice cap, and even this ground is frozen in winter and covered with snow. It is along the fords of these narrow ice-free sections of the coast that the few thousand Eskimos and the handful of Danes that make up the population of Greenland find a precarious livelihood.

During the short summer the interior of Greenland presents phenomena to be found nowhere else in the world; but the frozen wastes are inaccessible and only a few eyes have beheld the changes that take place there when the sun swings to the north. Great lakes are formed; mighty rivers flow between blue crystal banks, their waters never touching a stone nor a fragment of soil until they finally plunge down some chasm in the ice. Glaciers push out of the countless fords, some discharging ice into the sea at the rate of 30 to 100 feet a day.

Meat and fish and a few berries and shrubs spring to sudden life in the summer along the ice-free fringes of the coast, but few vegetables except radishes, turnips and lettuce can be grown. The people of Greenland are almost entirely dependent for food on the sea and on supplies brought from outside.

West Coast Settlements.

Greenland's history has been a history of its west coast. The east coast, although nearest Iceland and Europe, is inaccessible. It has been dubbed "the most inhospitable shore in the world." A broad stream of icebergs and smaller fragments of ice is constantly moving southward along the coast, forming a barrier that is impenetrable by ships for a large part of the year. Angmagssalik is the only permanent settlement on the east coast. Its population consists of several hundred Eskimos and a mere handful of Danes—trader, missionary, doctor and a few minor officials. In the summer a considerable volume of water flows out from glacial rivers centering at Angmagssalik, which tends to make an opening in the drifting offshore ice. It is then that Angmagssalik counts on its annual contact with the outside world.

Along the fords of the west coast are the remains of one of the most interesting colonies the world has known, the settlement built up on the edge of America by Erik the Red and his followers and conducted as a Christian community 500 years before Columbus crossed the Atlantic. On the narrow ice-free strip of coast, several thousand men of Norwegian blood maintained this colony, and another farther north for several centuries.

Because of the inaccessibility of the east coast, the first immigrants from Europe to the Western Hemisphere rounded the southern end of Greenland and landed on the southwestern shore which is ice-free during the summer. They settled in two districts: the Eastern Settlement (more properly the southeastern) about 100 miles around Cape Farewell, near the present Julianehab; and the Western Settlement (more properly the northwestern), nearly 300 miles farther up the west coast near the present Godthaab.

Soon after the year 1000 these settlements with their 2,000 or more inhabitants were raised Christian communities. Twelve churches were built in the Eastern Settlement and four in the Western. About 1110 a bishop of Greenland was appointed and there is a fairly complete record of bishops to the end of the fourteenth century. A monastery and a nunnery even were maintained in the Greenland colonies.

The Norse settlements in Greenland were at their best in the Eleventh and Twelfth and during the Thirteenth centuries. After 1800 they seem to have started to decline.

What happened to the Norse colonies cut adrift in Greenland has long been a mystery. Some traditions have it that they were destroyed by the Eskimos, others that the westward to other land. It is in the hope of finding evidence to support this latter tradition that the MacMillan expedition is making investigations this summer.

Now Ruled by Denmark.

Although the early settlers of Greenland were Norwegians, the country later came under Danish control. This occurred when Norway was combined for a time with Denmark. A Danish missionary who reached the southwest shores of Greenland in 1721 was the first to renew Scandinavian settlement of the country. Other settlers followed and Denmark established a paternal government over the Eskimos of the south.

Northwest Greenland was discovered, explored and occupied as a base for Polar expeditions by Americans during the Nineteenth century—notably by Peary and Greeley. When the United States purchased the Danish West Indies in 1917, as part of the purchase consideration it relinquished all claim to any part of Greenland. Since then the Danish government has asserted its authority to the sparsely settled northwest coast and to all other inhabited sections of the island.

The towns of Greenland are few and unimportant. Godthaab or Godthab, the capital of the northern inspection, is the chief settlement and yet has only a few hundred inhabitants. Upernivik, near latitude 73 degrees, is the northernmost "town" in the world, while Etah is the northernmost settlement. Julianehab, near the southern point of the island, is close to the site of the settlement of Erik the Red, and in the vicinity are still to be seen ruins of the stone houses and churches built in this isolated corner of America in the days of the early Crusades.

Sitamore Held Without Bail

Man Officer Bowser Captured at Gun Point Is Held by New York Authorities on Two Indictments Charging Robbery and Assault.

Harry Sitamore, who was arrested by Policeman Harold Bowser on North Front street last Saturday at the point of the officer's gun, was arraigned before Justice Talley in General Sessions Court in New York city on Thursday on two indictments charging robbery and assault and was remanded without bail to the Tombs.

Sitamore is being questioned by the authorities in the murders of Dot King and Louise Lawson, Broadway butterflies who were killed for their jewelry. He is accused of being the accomplice of Harry Behan, alias "The Hawk", in the $5,000 gun robbery in the Hotel Alamac in New York on May 21, 1924. Behan is serving a term of twenty years in Sing Sing for robbing Mrs. Howard Johnson, wife of the playwright, at the Hotel Alamac.

Interesting Grid Games Saturday

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 13.—Between sun up and sunset tomorrow the collegiate football championship of America can and possibly will come down to a definite decision in all or any one of six points throughout the country. One of the points is Chicago. If Dartmouth does not finish second to Slag's outfit the boys will have something of a large time voting the unbeaten green out of the national title. If Dartmouth does finish second—good night, Todd!

The Middle West then would be able to point with pride to the fact that the so-called Eastern champions lost to Chicago, which lost to Illinois, which lost to Michigan, Iowa and Nebraska. However, Dartmouth should beat Chicago.

Another focal point is Berkeley, California, where Washington and California will meet for the championship of the coast, and mayhap, the entire country. Each is unbeaten.

A third point of national interest is Montgomery, Alabama, where Alabama and Florida will meet, and a fourth is Columbia, Missouri, where Missouri and Oklahoma are coupled. Alabama should beat Florida if only for the fact that the latter lost to George Tech, which finished second to Alabama. Missouri, however, has picked up a live one in Oklahoma, which lost to Nebraska by three points, which lost to Missouri by exactly the same total.

Both Missouri and Alabama have been unbeaten, to date. So have Syracuse and Colgate, which are to meet in their annual catch-as-catch-can at Syracuse. Colgate generally is favored to win.

The sixth unbeaten big team is Tulane, which is scheduled to go into action against Sewanee. This should be a "breather" in view of the fact that Alabama "took" Sewanee for 27 to 3 earlier in the season.

Another game that might have an effect on the ultimate standing in the Yale-Princeton affair at New Haven. Both have been beaten but there isn't the slightest reason to believe that they do not rank with the best in the land. Yale should win but you cannot Princeton out when the referee toils his fatal ten.

Masonic Ball December 11

One of the big social events of the winter will be the Masonic Ball to be held at the state armory on Friday evening, December 11, under the auspices of the Craftsmen's Club of Rondout Lodge, No. 243, F. & A. M. There will be two orchestras to play for dancing, Zucca's and the Colonial Serenaders. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the Masonic Temple Fund. Tickets for the big ball have been distributed to the members of the lodge and those who intend attending may obtain tickets from any member of Rondout Lodge.

Very True

Once the computer Mameet was compelled to listen to a youthful prodigy and give his opinion.

"You have talent," he said to the little pianist, "and with proper diligence and perseverance you ought to be able to—"

"Oh, I would love to compose, too," interrupted the prodigy; "how shall I get about it?"

"You will have to learn a great deal more and become older."

"But you composed when you were thirteen."

"Yes," acknowledged Mameet, "but I didn't ask any one how to do it."

Fay Smith Hurt In Auto Crash

Fay Smith, driver of the Dodge delivery truck of the Kaplan Furniture Company on the Strand, was injured this morning when caught between the rear end of his truck and the Studebaker Six driven by Mrs. F. W. Kirk of No. 100 West Chester street, which crashed into the truck while it was parked in front of a house on West Chester street. Smith stood at the rear end of the truck as the Studebaker swerved in toward the curb and he was caught between both cars. He was injured about the legs and arms and was attended by Dr. Frank L. Eastman. The front end of the Studebaker was badly damaged. Smith's injuries are not considered serious.

Wanted Alice to Cross Continent

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Leonard Kip Rhinelander, wealthy New Yorker, wanted Alice Beatrice Jones, daughter of negro cab man of New Rochelle, to cross the continent to meet him at one stage of his ardent courtship of the girl whom he afterward married. It was brought out at the trial of his annulment suit in supreme court today.

Young Rhinelander was in the West at the time. He had been sent to an Arizona ranch by his father, Philip Rhinelander, who wanted to separate him and the girl.

A telegram introduced in evidence was dated San Francisco, May 22, 1922. It read:

"Alice Jones, New Rochelle, N. Y. 'Will be in San Francisco for two weeks. My pal is in San Francisco in the hospital. If you possibly come, take the express, and wire me. The express runs in four days. I received your letters."

Leonard.

Alice wrote him she could not come unless Rhinelander sent her money. Nothing was brought out in court to show that she did go.

Soldier Has Grievance

An amusing quarrel between two Venezuelan officers, General Elidale and Colonel Galarik, a former secretary of state, is shortly to have its sequel in one of the Paris police courts. Some time ago the general thought it to arrest his subordinate because he refused to conform to the Venezuelan army regulations in regard to the length of his hair. The colonel's complaint is that General Elidale not only caused him to be put in prison, but also ordered his hair, eyebrows and mustache to be shaved off, thereby inflicting great moral pain upon him. After his return the colonel challenged the general to a duel, but his telegram received no reply.

A few days ago the colonel heard that his enemy was due in Paris, and he went to the Gare Saint Lazare to greet him. As the general left the station his victim gave him a thrashing with a cane, and both parties quickly found themselves in the hands of the police. All attempts to bring about a reconciliation proved vain. "I will never forgive you for putting me in prison and shaving off my hair and eyebrows," insisted the colonel.

New Scientific Wonder

A woman on an Atlantic liner called up her sister on another ship 150 miles away, recently, and the two carried on a conversation lasting eight minutes. This was the first trial of a new marvel—a wireless telephone, invented in Germany, that can be used either between two ships or between a ship and land.

Previously, messages could be spoken only one way over wireless telephones. Now, it is said, messages may be spoken both ways simultaneously and interchangeably.—Popular Science Monthly.

No Time for Poets

The late Miss Amy Lowell complained one afternoon at a tea about the modern public's indifference to poetry.

"Our indifference," she said, "is only equalled by our ignorance. In an address to working girls I once stopped and asked:

"Can anyone here tell me what hexameters are?"

The working girls giggled, and out of them said:

"Why, of course, ma'am, everybody knows that hexameters are rows when you write by the rule."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.
